INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITIONS AND ACCREDITATIONS OF ANDIJAN STATE MEDICAL UNIVERSITY

Andijan State Medical Institute (ASMU) is a well-established medical institution in Uzbekistan, recognized by several international medical organizations. These accreditations ensure that ASMI meets global standards in medical education, allowing its graduates to pursue medical practice and higher studies in various countries.

World Health Organization (WHO): ASMU is listed in the World Directory of Medical Schools (WDOMS), a comprehensive database of medical schools worldwide. It's important to note that while inclusion in WDOMS indicates recognition, it does not imply accreditation or endorsement by WHO.

National Medical Commission (NMC): The institute is recognized by the National Medical Commission of India, making its graduates eligible to practice medicine in India after meeting the necessary requirements.

Foundation for Advancement of International Medical Education and Research (FAIMER): ASMU is recognized by FAIMER, which maintains directories of international medical schools and accrediting agencies.

World Federation for Medical Education (WFME): ASMU is recognized by WFME, an organization that aims to enhance the quality of medical education worldwide.

Educational Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates (ECFMG): Graduates from ASMU are eligible to apply for ECFMG certification, a prerequisite for pursuing postgraduate medical education and licensing in the United States.

These accreditations and recognitions affirm ASMU's commitment to maintaining international standards in medical education, providing its graduates with opportunities to practice medicine globally, subject to fulfilling respective licensing requirements.
